DESCRIPTION:

This 1-hour continuing education course examines current and emerging methodologies for the detection and non-invasive management of early dental caries. Participants will review recent evidence supporting minimally invasive interventions compared with traditional treatment approaches and discuss clinical protocols that preserve natural tooth structure while improving long-term outcomes.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES:

1. Identify different stages of carious lesions based on the American Dental Association Caries Classification System.
2. Incorporate evidence-based treatment modalities into a patient care plan and dental practice workflow.
3. Describe the mechanism of action and clinical efficacy of treatment options.
4. Select the appropriate chemotherapeutic intervention based on caries lesion presentation.
5. Provide effective patient communication in a way that ensures understanding of treatment options.
